Collective Time investigates the collective consumption of narrative, self-contained time units. In this case, it is the watching of a film. The Top 10 films within each of the commonest film genres were selected (based on lists published by the AFI and IMDB). The black mark on the aluminium rod corresponds in centimetres to the length of each film in minutes. A note is made below the black mark of the length of the film in minutes, the film title + year, and the names of the director, producer and the studio.
